

Fashion as Women's Saving Grace

Women can't help it but to look beautiful, always. It doesn't matter if it will spend them hundred thousands or millions. They are willing to surrender their savings just to buy their desired designer clothes, bags, jewelries and shoes. And these expensive things are taking full effect.

When a woman walks carrying an exorbitant bag, fashioning a stylish dress and jewels, she instantly becomes a head turner. Not just to the holdapers, but also to both men and women. This does not mean that women have this strange thirst for attention. Girls just want to always look presentable to the eyes of the people.

When a boyfriend tells her girl that he loves her for what she is, the girl ignores the statement and continue instead on improving herself for his partner. No matter what you say or do to maintain a girl's appearance, they are all useless because changing their looks each situation is already a part of their genes. And this explains something.

The way you dress yourself represents you. For Eva, she dresses herself to boost confidence. If you'll try to observe, women are more casual and natural if they are themselves represented by their appearance. If sometimes fashion stands on behalf the whole person's character (usually on men), fashion, especially for women, is a state of emotion. It could be about struggling but most of the time, for the better.

A woman on her downside is having trouble to fix herself the way she was before. On the other hand, a woman trying to forget what she is now will change into a new look. Attitude and fashion are both the cause and effect. Women are balancing them to stay in shape. What you wear for the day affects your attitude, either way, your attitude affects your selection for clothing.

In most cases, a frumpy lady gets more stress for the reason that she doesn't think she is acceptable. Girls are crazy about fashion because it helps them. Embellishing themselves is their saving grace. Whether it is a women's designer clothes or not they will buy one because it is their need, not an extreme luxury.

Keeping up with the latest fashion is a part of women's growth. From time to time, they will crave for a new look just to decent. Fashion for them is a bliss, a shell for all their worries and insecurities. We, men, shouldn't blame girls for always trying to be exquisite, even if its exaggerated, it's their way of saying “I'm good for you”. If girls can't help it but to be fastidious, let them be. They can be meticulous for they are made like that. They need to be beautiful, because girls will always be girls.
